Market Recap

“Seed of future lies in the evolving structure of the past”

In the immediate past, Nifty had smart rally during May-2020 and October -2021 and then corrected during Oct-2021 and June-2022

Nifty and India 10 Year Bond Yield Charts

Interest Rates and Nifty Movement Relationship

10 year Bond Yield (Interest rates)	Nifty Movement
Rising	Falling
Falling	Rising
Sideways	Mostly Rising

- » Indian Markets have fallen only during period of Interest rates rising up.
- » In cases where the Interest rates have already risen at a particular level and are stable there , Nifty has moved up during the consolidation phase
- » In cases of falling interest rates period , Nifty has risen

S&P 500 Returns During Fed Rate Hike Cycles

Over the last 70 years, Out of 12 rising rate cycle, market generated positive returns for 11 times

- » Rate hike cycle can be a period of rate hike till the start of rate fall.
- » Over last 70 years, there has been 12 periods of rate hikes wherein S&P 500 had positive returns 11 out of 12 times during periods of Fed rate hike cycle
- » Since 1954, S&P 500 has delivered an average of 9.4% annually during Fed rate hike cycles.
- » At the time of rate hike, the Index usually fall but as the rate hikes stops and consolidates, Index rises covering up the lost returns.

Bond Yield to Range Between 7-8% till Mar'23

- » Till Mar'23, We expect the bond yield to range in between 7%-8%
- » This implies that sideways movement of Interest rates till Mar23 will keep Nifty movement of rising up
- » However, points where the bond yield moves from lower to higher range, Nifty will see intermittent declines for short term
- » In the short term (say 6 months), Nifty may see some selling when the interest rates go up, however Nifty will go up as rates consolidate
- » Currently the Repo rate is at 5.4% which means bond yields at 7.2% currently are at a premium of 180 bps. Even if Repo rate rises by 0.5% the yield has enough cushion to absorb the increase

Nifty 500 Net Profit Margin Chart Over Years

- » Indian Corporate entered into trajectory of Net profit margin expansion post Jun 2019 led by cut in corporate tax rate and other structural fundamental reasons.
- » During on set of Covid , margins fell due to lower operating leverage as Sales of companies declined
- » Post covid, Margins bounced back to the upward trajectory
- » The current downfall of margins are due to inflationary pressures and not due to lower revenue growth.
- » We expect this quarter was the worst in terms on NPM and from now on it should get back on upward trajectory as costs related issue slow down

2022- Selling Pressure Points not Institutionalized

- » Current fall in Nifty cannot be compared to fall in year 2000 or Year 2008 as unlike past there isn't any financial squeeze happening in a particular industry or Company
- » Scare of VC selling not plausible as Venture Capitalist firms losing money in crypto are still having enough liquidity in books.

Venture Capital Dry Powder at $540 bn

Source: Prequin

- » This chart shows the last 22 years of venture capital liquidity which has not been deployed. This is referred to as “dry powder.”
- » After the sell off seen in the first half of this year, it is natural to think that VCs would be running for cover – But that’s not the case. There is enough liquidity in the hands of VCs before they start feeling selling pressure.

Indian Currency Getting Stronger

Period	EUR/INR	JPY/INR	GBP/INR	USD/INR	USD Index
